Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

If a child is younger than 18, they are not required to have ID to travel. They'll just need their boarding pass.

<http://blog.tsa.gov/2010/06/traveling-with-kids.html>

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

Subject: Acceptable Forms Of ID for flight

My company has just purchased a plane ticket for me to fly from St. Louis MO to Birmingham AL on Jan. 18th 2016 and I'm concerned about my Drivers License not working for TSA. What can I do to get acceptable ID prior to the day of flight? I'm an Illinois resident and work in Missouri. Please contact me via this email or at 618.709.9502

Subject: Real ID

I have been reading about this new program, and wonder how I can strengthen my ID's when flying. I am stopped every year at the airports. Doesn't seem to matter if it is a domestic flight or an international flight. It is to the point now that I am used to being stopped and expect it. I would just like to be able to travel without these inconveniences. I have already provided Homeland Security with all the information they require, and they always send me a letter.

(copy attached). Even when I show this letter at the airports, I am still detained. Last year when entering the USA in Houston returning from our annual vacation in Puerto Vallarta, I was questioned about the letter, and told that all it was is a form letter and meaningless.

Is there ANYTHING that I can show that will get me through the security lines quicker, and allow me to print my boarding passes without going to the counter and being cross examined?

Two years ago, when detained in Houston, the officer I spoke with commented to me "Mr. Nelson - I bet we see more of you than your wife does" Very nice, but it still doesn't eliminate this extra step I must always take.

I would appreciate any help yo can provide me. We leave for Puerto Vallarta Mexico on January 6th. I have my letter, but wish I had more. I look forward to hearing from you with any suggestions you might have.

(b)(6)

(b)(6)

I can also provide you with a copy of my passport, if you think that this would help.

Hello

So if I am in a non compliant state, due to travel in April of 2016, how does this work.
I do have a passport issued years ago, but I have moved, so does that too need to be updated.
What about others who plan to travel with me as well from non compliant state of MO. What will they need to do.

I recently read the article on the Real ID Act.

I have planned a trip to Nevada in February 2016 and I am confused as to the proper ID needed to board my flight.

I have a current Illinois drivers license, Illinois FOID card, and an original Social Security card for identification.

Will I be able to board my flight out of OHARE airport to McCarren airport without rejection?

Hi

I live in MN and MN is a non-compliant state. This means that I will need a passport or other form of ID to board a domestic flight.

My question is, do I need a passport or other form of accepted identification to get a gate pass? My underage son flies as an unaccompanied minor to his father's in Washington State in the summer, then back to MN before school starts. I usually get a gate pass so I can bring him to the gate before take off and to meet him at the gate when he flies home.

Do I need a passport in order to get a gate pass for these occasions? I don't plan on flying myself.

Thank you. I understand that my son will not need an ID until he is 18. My question is, do I need a passport to get a gate pass to take him to his gate?

DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. If a child is younger than 18, they are not required to have ID to travel. They'll just need their boarding pass.

Hi

I live in MN and MN is a non-compliant state. This means that I will need a passport or other form of ID to board a domestic flight.

My question is, do I need a passport or other form of accepted identification to get a gate pass? My underage son flies as an unaccompanied minor to his father's in Washington State in the summer, then back to MN before school starts. I usually get a gate pass so I can bring him to the gate before take off and to meet him at the gate when he flies home.

Do I need a passport in order to get a gate pass for these occasions? I don't plan on flying myself.

Hello,

My family and I purchased tickets for flights going out of the Minneapolis airport in Feb 2016. I've been hearing concerns about the state of MN being non compliant with the Real ID standards. We still have the normal MN state issued drivers licenses. Are we going to be able to fly out of MN and back in for our upcoming vacation? I'm not finding the date as to when the air travel restriction may go into place. I only find wording that says 2016, but not a specific date.

Thank you.

I am a current resident of Missouri. I travel to California to visit family on a regular basis. I have just learned that my Missouri drivers license will not be accepted as a form of id at the airports. I need to know what I need to do now that I am unable to use this form of identification to board a plane? I don't have a passport as I never leave the United States. I am not even sure I am able to obtain a passport as I am currently a convicted felon still on supervision. Any information that you can provide me as to what I am able to use as ID for boarding flights will be helpful and appreciated.

My sister and I will be flying from Missouri to Florida in October. All the information I am reading is very confusing. So I have a few questions.

Will we need a passport to fly to Florida with MO drivers license?

Can we get the passport card or do we HAVE TO get the much more expensive book. Also where does Hawaii fit into all this? We will be traveling there in 2017.

Thank you.

I am a new resident to the state of Washington. I just read that our state issued drivers licence may not be good for air travel identification after Jan 10th. The article said there are four stages. Which stage is Washington in? I am planning a trip to LA starting Jan 4th and returning to Washington on Jan 14th. Will I be allowed to fly back on that date?
Please advise. Thank you.

Gentlemen,

Your website is entirely too confusing for your target audience.
You are a service organization, you should be more aware.

On the following page:
<http://www.dhs.gov/real-id-enforcement-brief>
You write:

- Phase 4: Boarding federally regulated commercial aircraft. A driver's license or identification card from a noncompliant state may only be used in conjunction with an acceptable second form of ID for boarding federally regulated commercial aircraft.

However, finding a link to what those IDs are is difficult and not even on the DHS page. I eventually found the link to the TSA and followed it. However it does not list a restriction on drivers licenses and additionally does not list " an acceptable second form of ID" as per your website, it only list primary forms that can be use instead of a drivers license.

Please clarify your website so that an average american citizen can follow it.

Hello,
My husband and I are leaving via Southwest airlines March 1. We are both concerned about using just our California drivers' licenses as our only form of required ID for boarding. We do have current passports. Should we take these as well, just to be safe?

Dear Sir or Madam:

I recently read an article about compliance with Homeland Security standards for identification to board an airplane in the future. Typically a valid driver license or state ID was sufficient. However, some states do not comply with Homeland Security Standards and will no longer be sufficient ID.

I understand that five state are near a deadline to ask for an extension. I also understand that nineteen states have requested and received an extension to October 10, 2016 to come into compliance. I am a resident in one of the nineteen states given the extension: Michigan.

Michigan has a driver license program with two levels of verification: a.) Standard and b.) Enhanced.

The Enhanced program requires that information be sent by the State to the Office of Homeland Security for review, verification and acceptance. The Enhanced Michigan Driver License is sufficient ID to make a land crossing at the US-Canada border. It is fully acceptable to the Immigration Staff at Windsor/Detroit and Sarnia/Port Huron.

Given that Homeland Security has approved this Enhanced Driver License (It takes 3 – 4 weeks to obtain one at a higher fee), will the Michigan Enhanced Driver License also be refused as insufficient to board an airline flight after October 10, 2016. Or was the Homeland Security Review and acceptance sufficient ID to allow boarding.

Thanks for your response.

Sincerely,

I live in New Mexico and I understand our drivers licenses may no longer be accepted to board a domestic flight.

I work for the USDA Forest Service and have been a permanent federal employee for over 20 years and have a background check. We have a LincPass card that we now must use to log into computers. It has my name and photo on it. Will that work to board a flight? If not, would TSA consider adding other federal employee IDs as acceptable as they do military IDs?

Thanks,

My sister and I will be flying from Missouri to Florida in October. All the information I am reading is very confusing. So I have a few questions.

Will we need a passport to fly to Florida with MO drivers license?

Can we get the passport card or do we HAVE TO get the much more expensive book. Also where does Hawaii fit into all this? We will be traveling there in 2017.

Subject: ID needed to board aircraft with IL drivers license

Hello!

I learned today that Illinois is not compliant with the REAL ID act and IL drivers licenses will not be sufficient forms of ID to board federally regulated aircraft after January 10, 2016.

My husband and I are flying to Colorado from Ohare airport (Chicago) January 25, 2016 and neither of us have current passports. At this point, there is not enough time for us to obtain passports. What other identification do we need to bring so we can board our flight?

Thank you in advance for your prompt response!

The commercial driver's license does not establish legal lawful status and therefore does not comply with the REAL ID requirements.

While working for Kansas City Power & Light I was required to have a Commercial Driver's License with a "Hazardous Materials" endorsement. In 2008 my fingerprints were submitted for a fingerprint based security threat assessment. I received a letter from TSA on December 6, 2008 that has a "Determination of NO Security Threat." I retired from Kansas City Power & Light (after nearly 32 years) in 2011. When I renewed my driver's license I had the "Hazardous Materials" endorsement removed because it was no longer needed. Since I still have a Commercial Driver's License does this count as REAL ID?

Subject: New REAL ID law regarding air travel

Hi,
I currently live in Illinois and saw the notice that my state issues drivers license will no longer be accepted as a valid form of identification as of January 10th, 2016.

I have a trip planned for January 16th-20th via American Airlines and this short notice won't allow me enough time to acquire a passport.

Will there be any sort of grace period for air travel? I know passports usually take 4-6 weeks to get, which would leave me stuck for my trip.

Any information would be greatly appreciated.

Thanks in advance,

(b)(6)

Question:

We will be flying in January and May and have Illinois Drivers Licenses. What other form of identification will we need and when?

I read the Phases but wasn't sure what this means--A driver's license or identification card from a noncompliant state may only be used in conjunction with an acceptable second form of ID for boarding federally regulated commercial aircraft.

Thanks!

Subject: REAL ID Question

Hello-

I read on the TSA web site (<https://www.tsa.gov/travel/security-screening/identification>) that "A weapon permit is not an acceptable form of identification.", and I'd like to inquire as to why. I have a resident CCW permit for my home State, as well as a couple of non-resident permits for other States. One of the permits I have required fingerprinting, while all three required fairly extensive background checks. With the requirements for these permits being much stricter than for a Drivers License, and criminal background checks being necessary for each of them, I'd like to know why they would not suffice for identification under REAL ID. Thanks!

Hi,

Is it true that we have to have Passport to prove real ID and that driver's photo license will not be acceptable to board a plane from PDX in Oregon to California? We will be traveling on Jan. 13.

Thank you for answering our inquiry.

Hello,

My family and I purchased tickets for flights going out of the Minneapolis airport in Feb 2016. I've been hearing concerns about the state of MN being non compliant with the Real ID standards. We still have the normal MN state issued drivers licenses.

Are we going to be able to fly out of MN and back in for our upcoming vacation? I'm not finding the date as to when the air travel restriction may go into place. I only find wording that says 2016, but not a specific date.

Thank you.

I have been reading so many different things it is confusing. MN offers Enhances Drivers Licenses...do I NEED one of those? Please shed some light for me...as I said I keep reading so many different conflicting things.Idont know what is right.
Thanks so much.

I have just learned that my Missouri drivers license will not be accepted as a form of id at the airports. I need to know what I need to do now that I am unable to use this form of identification to board a plane? I don't have a passport as I never leave the United States. I am not even sure I am able to obtain a passport as I am currently a convicted felon still on supervision. Gentlemen,

Your website is entirely too confusing for your target audience.

You are a service organization, you should be more aware.

On the following page:

<http://www.dhs.gov/real-id-enforcement-brief>

You write:

- • * Phase 4: Boarding federally regulated commercial aircraft. A driver's license or identification card from a noncompliant state may only be used in conjunction with an acceptable second form of ID for boarding federally regulated commercial aircraft.

However, finding a link to what those IDs are is difficult and not even on the DHS page. I eventually found the link to the TSA and followed it. However it does not list a restriction on drivers licenses and additionally does not list "an acceptable second form of ID" as per your website, it only list primary forms that can be use instead of a drivers license.

Please clarify your website so that an average american citizen can follow it.

Subject: Minnesota REAL ID Question

Hello,

I was reading the FAQ for the REAL ID on your website and I am still not fully understanding, so I am hoping someone can help me. I have a "regular" Minnesota drivers license. With the new laws that will be in effect in 2016 regarding valid identification, is my drivers license still a valid form of identification for a flight to Texas at the end of February 2016, or will I need a passport or an enhanced ID for this flight?

Thank you for your help!

Date:	2015/12/31 18:01:38
Type:	Note

Dear DHS,

I noted that the DHS is going to start phased enforcement of the REAL ID Act (<http://www.dhs.gov/real-id-enforcement-brief#>).

My primary questions is: Can truck drivers without a REAL ID Act compliant state issued identification enter ports or other federally regulated areas overseen by TSA and/or DHS to make pick-ups or deliveries using non-compliant REAL ID Act state issued Commercial Driver's Licenses (CDL's).

Currently, some drivers get a Transportation Worker Identification Credential (TWIC) which allows them direct entry to ports or other federally controlled areas. However, some drivers (and my company) pay a TWIC certified driver service to strictly supervise and guide the truck drivers while in the port or other federally regulated area for their pickups or deliveries.

Further question: If a TWIC card was issued based on a non-compliant REAL ID Act issued state CDL, will that TWIC card be valid after the new phased enforcement of the REAL ID Act for entry into a port or federally regulated area?

Last question: Will services such as the one my company uses, where a TWIC certified driver service supervises a non-TWIC CDL driver while making deliveries or pickups at ports or other federally regulated areas, be allowed to accept non-compliant REAL ID Act state issued CDL's as proof of personal identification?

Any help you can give me answering these questions would be greatly appreciated. Thank you kindly for your attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

I currently live in Illinois and saw the notice that my state issues drivers license will no longer be accepted as a valid form of identification as of January 10th, 2016.

I have a trip planned for January 16th-20th via American Airlines and this short notice won't allow me enough time to acquire a passport.

Will there be any sort of grace period for air travel? I know passports usually take 4-6 weeks to get, which would leave me stuck for my trip.

Any information would be greatly appreciated.

The REAL ID Act is being enforced as we speak. The state of California has received an extension for 2016 however, Illinois has not and therefore subject to enforcement.

Presenting an IL Driver's License should cause the guards to ask for an alternate id, such as a passport, or have an alternate procedure in place.

The facility in CA should be able to state those requirements to you.

Thank you,

I was later contacted by the passport office stating that my drivers license was insufficient for passport purposes due to the fact that it states "not for federal identification." The travel.state.gov site lists primary identification as a fully valid drivers license and does not specify if it must be a Real ID. Hi there,

I am an attorney who represents a child welfare agency and my client has asked about the effects the implementation of the Real ID Act will have on undocumented youth. Specifically she is concerned about the ability of youths to access federal buildings/resources, since their IDs will not meet the standards outlined in the Act.

Currently the child's school ID or a Letter of Identification is sufficient, however, the Act seems to preclude those as options going forward.

Any solutions or answers would be greatly appreciated.

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

While we have set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports this will not begin until Jan. 22, 2018. You will be able to utilize your driver's license domestically until then. After that date if your state is in compliance or extension status you will have until 2020. After the 2020 date it will be dependent upon the driver's license.

In reviewing the information on the webpage I see that it shows that for domestic air travel that we have until October 1, 2020 to have a compliant ID (Exhibit 1). However on the REAL ID page (Exhibit 2) it shows that "The following states/territories have an extension, allowing Federal agencies to accept driver's licenses from these states until October 10, 2016." Texas is on this list.

To Whom It May Concern,

In reviewing the information on the webpage I see that it shows that for domestic air travel that we have until October 1, 2020 to have a compliant ID (Exhibit 1). However on the REAL ID page (Exhibit 2) it shows that "The following states/territories have an extension, allowing Federal agencies to accept driver's licenses from these states until October 10, 2016." Texas is on this list.

Does this mean that Texans will be able to travel domestically without a REAL ID until October 1, 2020 or is this going to require Texans to travel with a REAL ID on October 10, 2016?.

I look forward to hearing back from you. Thanks in advance for your assistance.

Exhibit 1:

<http://www.dhs.gov/real-id-public-faqs>

Q: When will I need to change how I travel domestically?

Starting January 22, 2018, passengers who have driver's licenses issued by a state that is not yet compliant with REAL ID and that has not received an extension will need to show an alternative form of acceptable identification for domestic air travel. Please see TSA's website for a list of acceptable forms of identification. Passengers who have licenses issued by a state that is compliant or that has an extension to become compliant with REAL ID requirements may continue to use their licenses as usual. For a list of states already in compliance or with an extension visit DHS's REAL ID webpage. DHS continually updates this list as more states come into compliance or obtain extensions.

Starting October 1, 2020, every air traveler will need to present a REAL ID-compliant license or another acceptable form of identification for domestic air travel. A REAL ID compliant license is one that meets, and is issued by a state that complies with, the REAL ID Act's security standards.

Travelers can check DHS's REAL ID webpage at any time to learn if your state is compliant and can check with your state's agency that issues driver's licenses about how to acquire a compliant license. The earlier your state becomes compliant, the more likely you will be able to acquire a compliant license as part of the normal renewal cycle.

Exhibit 2:

<http://www.dhs.gov/current-status-states-territories>

The following states/territories have an extension, allowing Federal agencies to accept driver's licenses from these states until October 10, 2016:

- Alaska

- Arizona
- Arkansas
- California
- Guam
- Idaho
- Kentucky
- Louisiana
- Maine
- Massachusetts
- Michigan
- Montana
- New Jersey
- New York
- N. Carolina

Posed question:

When applying for a Washington enhanced license to be compliant with the law a temporary paper ID is issued. Is this temporary license within the compliance of the new law or not. Thank you.

While the REAL ID Act of 2005 is being enforced at federal facilities there may be alternate procedures for entry into the building. We would encourage you to contact the IRS and see if there is an escort available to bring you to the office. As security requirements vary for each facility you can also contact the Federal Protective Service in the facility about alternative identification as well.

I recently tried to meet with the IRS representative however DHS would not let me enter the elevator to access the IRS rep because I did not have a drivers license or passport. I was told this was required and turned away. Is there a reason a matriculation ID should not work or other county issued ID? Some folks only have ITINS which are used to file tax returns. Otherwise undocumented. Does this mean undocumented taxpayers cannot enter federal buildings?

Thanks

Hello-

I read on the TSA web site (<https://www.tsa.gov/travel/security-screening/identification>) that "A weapon permit is not an acceptable form of identification.", and I'd like to inquire as to why. I have a resident CCW permit for my home State, as well as a couple of non-resident permits for other States. One of the permits I have required fingerprinting, while all three required fairly extensive background checks. With the requirements for these permits being much stricter than for a Drivers License, and criminal background checks being necessary for each of them, I'd like to know why they would not suffice for identification under REAL ID. Thanks!

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

Hello

My mom is a US citizen and lives in Puerto Rico. She traveled to the US mainland for the holidays using a Puerto Rico driver's license and is returning to Puerto Rico on January 11, 2016. Can you please confirm that a Puerto Rico driver's license will still be a valid id for traveling on Jan 11, 2016? The attached link does not clearly state that. Thank you.

Hello

My son is graduating boot camp in San Diego CA on March 4th. I live in Illinois. According to the information that I can find, I will not need a passport or a REAL ID card as of that date to fly to CA, but may need it to enter the federal facility, MCRD in San Diego?

Is this correct?

Please advise!

Hello,

I read today that there are problems with Virginia's compliance with the Real ID Act that will cause the federal government to stop recognizing Virginia driver's licenses in October of 2016. Before I contact my state legislator concerning this, I would like to know what things are lacking in Virginia's licensing program.

Thank you very much for any information you can provide.

We will be traveling, by air, Jan 8th, 2016 and returning home Jan 29th. We have Illinois driver's license and are concerned regarding if they can be used as id for our return flight. We have read info on the TSA website which states Jan 10th is the expiry date for Illinois. But upon further reading we notices that there is a 120 day extension until further info is sent out. But then read there is no extension for Illinois.

We are a bit confused.

Would you please confirm if our Illinois state issued driver's license will be valid id for our return flights.

Thank you so much for your time and assistance.

Subject: IL not REAL ID Compliant

My husband and I will be traveling in mid January within the United States traveling from IL to FL. We have heard news reports that IL State Driver's Licenses are not considered TSA compliant and we will need another form of ID at the airports. I have an up to date passport but my husband needs to renew his, and his passport expired in 2004. So it is unlikely that his will be renewed in time although he is starting the process.

We have read that we would have received 120 days notice if this is affecting our travel plans, but we also see that on your website that IL has not received a continuance and as of January 10th it must conform by the new rules. We would appreciate some clarifications as to our options for appropriate ID come January 17th.

Thank you so much.

I am assuming that there will be some form of identification that will be acceptable and that I will not be treated any differently due to the actions of the State of Illinois.

Please advise as I have a family member in a federal prison and would hope that I will still be able to visit the facility after January 10th. The prison is FCI Greenville located in Greenville, IL.

Subject: New Mexico Drivers license acceptable ID to fly commercial airline

Hello,

My name is (b)(6) and I will be flying on a trip from Albuquerque, NM to Portland, OR on January 18th. There is a lot of confusion around if a New Mexico driver's license will be acceptable by then. According to the DHS website updated on December 15th, 2015 it says that the public will be given at least 120 day's notice on when a license will not be acceptable anymore. However, I am hearing that on January 10th 2015 a New Mexico driver's license will no longer be accepted. Can you please clarify this for me as soon as possible. This is very confusing and there is now way I can get a passport by then.

Regards,

Thank you for your very prompt response. I followed your last link (which was actually the one that prompted my inquiry) and found this on the sub-linked page:

<http://www.dhs.gov/real-id-enforcement-brief#>

From that page and the text list of states and their compliance status:

The following states/territories have not received an extension for 2016 and will be subject to enforcement beginning Jan. 10, 2016.

- Illinois
- Missouri
- New Mexico
- Washington

Last Published Date: December 29, 2015

So, in light of this change to the policy as of yesterday, can you point me to the textual section that states that Illinois residents will have 120 days from January 10, 2016 to continue to be allowed to fly using just an Illinois Drivers License?

Thank you again for your assistance.

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

You can find an acceptable list of ID's for airline travel from TSA here:

If a child is younger than 18, they are not required to have ID to travel. They'll just need their boarding pass.

Can you please clarify if a person holding a valid Illinois Drivers' will be allowed to pass through TSA checkpoints on or after Jan 10 2016 without a second form of government/acceptable identification? The enforcement explanation on your page is confusing as to whether Phase I will begin being enforced or all phases for non-compliant states.

Thank you for your quick response to this inquiry. I have business travel pending for January 11th and would really appreciate an answer in a timely manner.

I have heard that some state ID is not qualified for air travel this Jan 10, 2016; however some sources said that may be affected.

Therefore I would like to know more information about the real ID. I have a Washington State driver license, not enhanced once. So I still be use it as a standalone document for commercial air travel after Jan 10, 2016.

Correct. No one will be required to fly with a passport for domestic travel until the TSA enforcement date is set and they are from a non-compliant state at that time.

Hello.

I'm seeking clarification as to how the Real ID will be effected at airports.

I understand the issues with some states needing to be in compliance by Jan 10. Does this mean that on Jan 10, air travelers from these states will be required to furnish other forms of ID such as passports?

I read something about 120 days enforcement. What exactly does this mean?

Thanks !!!

Hello,
I am trying to find out information regarding the validity of California driver's licenses for air travel. I understand that California has been granted an extension until "at least" January 10. My parents are traveling from California to TN for my wedding the week of January 16, 2016. Will they be able to board the plane with only driver's licenses? We have minimal time to try to get them a passport if that is indeed our only option. They live in Fresno, CA and do not have the financial ability to take time off of work to travel to a US passport office in addition to trying to pay the expedited fees. Please help me to figure out what I/they need to do. Thank you for your time.
